Stanimir Lambov is a Bulgarian guitarist, improviser and composer based in the Netherlands. His love for the guitar has brought him to a lot of different musical situations and has led him to develop a versatile playing style – influences include jazz, classical, world, rock, blues, funk, electronic and much more. Stanimir loves spontaneity and improvisation and has developed big interest in fully improvised music, while at the same time is passionate about composition and working as sideman for various projects. He is also passionate about music education and event organisation.

Skills:

- Competent guitar player eager to learn more on the instrument and able to play a lot of different varieties of music. Experienced in electric, acoustic and nylon string guitars. Passionate about playing bass guitar as well.
- Passionate performer with a consistent and strong work ethic
- Composing and arranging skills
- Skilled and passionate music instructor with 9 years of teaching experience, including working as a guitar instructor in middle school (2013-14), private instructor and leader of guitar workshops
- Competent with the use of audio and guitar related equipment as well as skills in recording, mixing, mastering and music production
- Excellent understanding of music-related theoretical subjects and good research skills
- Good communicator
- Good organisational and entrepreneurial skills
- Event management (worked for the organisation of a few festivals, including being the main organiser for one of them – see “curational works”)
- Excellent administrative skills
- Driving license (cat.B)
